

you would want to categorise recipes by cuisine (Italian, Jamaican, French, etc), so instead of storing the cuisine name in every recipe (which would be inefficient and risky for errors) you create a separate table and link it by its id. Same for the type, so using record_type[cuisine,type] can allow users to filter by both.

two lines because we have two records: cuisine and type

